TRADE STANDARDS ACT 1979

Declaration of Dangerous Goods—Revocation Notice

WHEREAS declarations of dangerous goods have variously been made for specified goods pursuant to section 25 of the Trade Standards Act 1979, take note that I, Gail Gago, Minister for Consumer Affairs, hereby vary or revoke the previous declarations named in the Schedules below, pursuant to section 25 (1) (c) of the Trade Standards Act 1979.

I am satisfied that a declaration pursuant to section 25 (2) is no longer necessary for those goods named below in Schedule 1 as the matter is now dealt with in section 9B of the Summary Offences Act 1953 and I revoke previous declarations for those goods named in Schedule 1 below:

SCHEDULE 1

Objects including but not limited to ice pipes, that are used, intended for use, or designed for use, in smoking or inhaling into the human body, methamphetamine crystals, also known by other names including ice and crystal meth.

And;

I am satisfied that pursuant to section 25 (2) of the Trade Standards Act 1979, it is more appropriate that those matters named below in Schedule 2 be now dealt with by adopting commonwealth consumer product safety standards in Schedule 2 of the Trade Standards Regulations 2000 and I revoke previous declarations for those goods named in Schedule 2 below:

SCHEDULE 2

Balloon-blowing kits which comprise a tube containing a compound of acetone, ethyl acetate, polyvinyl acetate or benzene; and

Goods that are Hot Water Bottles that do not comply with the provisions of British Standard BS 1970:2006, 'Hot water bottles manufactured from rubber and PVC-Specification' published by the British Standards Institution, which came into effect on 31 October 2006.

And;

I am satisfied that pursuant to section 25 (1) (c) of the Trade Standards Act 1979, a declaration of dangerous goods is no longer necessary and I revoke previous declarations for those goods named in Schedule 3 below:

SCHEDULE 3

A floating swimming pool safety alarm marketed as 'Aqualarm'.

Confetti partly or wholly consisting of non-biodegradable particles which may present an inhalation hazard including goods known as 'foil confetti'.

Novelty toy mobile telephones incorporating a cigarette lighter:

Panzer brand rotary hammer 26 mm
International brand electro bohrhammer
Panzer brand orbital sander 93 mm
Panzer brand angle grinder 100 mm
Panzer brand impact drill 13 mm.

A toy consisting of a hollow disc, enclosing a power and a light source, with two pieces of string passing through holes in the centre of the disc and connected to each other, such that the disk may be spun at right angles to the string between the hands along the same axis towards each other and then apart and includes the class of goods known as Space Saucer.

A ball point pen consisting of a pen and cap both of which are made of plastic the pen being of triangular cross-section bearing markings resembling those of a clinical thermometer and other markings including the words 'St Valentine' the cap being designed and constructed to fit over the ball point of the pen and to be detachable.

Those models of the toy cap gun marketed as 'Super Cap Gun', which lack a blocking plug securely affixed into the end of the barrel so that the emissions upon detonation of projectiles, particles or other objects from the barrel is prevented.

'Tommee Tippee Cuddle-Sak' infant cushion and other cushions loosely filled with plastic foam beads manufactured for use by children under one year of age.

The revocation or variation of the declaration of dangerous goods named in the Schedules above shall take effect on publication of this notice.

Dated 12 November 2008.

GAIL GAGO, Minister for Consumer Affairs
