A safety case is a document describing in detail the operating and management practices adopted by a business that seeks to minimise the risks and hazards arising from the use of gas. It will focus on a range of issues, including staff training and supervision strategies and risk management techniques.

The objective of the proposed Gas Safety (Safety Case) Regulations 1998 is to protect the public from potentially hazardous situations that can arise out of the conveyance, sale, supply, measurement, control and use of gas. The Regulations will achieve the objective by stating the minimum content requirements of a safety case and minimum requirements of a safety management system.

The safety case regime has been identified as the most appropriate regulatory framework for the supply sector of the Victorian gas industry. It represents a light-handed approach in that it avoids the preparation of prescriptive technical regulations describing materials used, design, operational processes etc, in detail. It therefore reduces compliance burdens for gas companies but at the same time, is able to minimise the risks associated with the conveyance and supply of gas.

The benefits of the proposed Regulations are in the maintenance of safety standards at present levels and the prevention of an increase in the risk of incidents as more operators enter the market. They provide the opportunity to achieve reductions in:

- injuries, serious incidents and fatalities;
- gas industry downtime;
- loss of gas sales; and
- damage to property and operational systems.

Consideration has been given to the option of prescribing in detail all the required elements and operational processes for a safety case instead of the proposed performance-based approach. This option has very few advantages and many disadvantages, including significant set-up and enforcement costs. Moreover, this type of control does not encourage companies to consider facility safety as part of overall operational management planning and inhibits the drive to achieve safety standards at minimum costs by adopting alternative and innovative processes.

An RIS has been prepared in respect of the Regulations. The RIS has been prepared to examine the proposed Regulations and consider and evaluate alternatives. It concludes that the objectives could best be achieved by making the Regulations.

Copies of the RIS may be obtained by contacting Geoff Hargreaves from Energy Projects Division, Department of Treasury and Finance on 9651 3791 between 9.00 a.m. and 5.00 p.m. on weekdays, or collected from Level 3, 35 Spring Street, Melbourne.

Public comments or submissions are invited on the proposed Regulations and RIS. All comments and submissions must be in writing and must be received at the above address by no later than 5.00 p.m. on 26 March 1998.

All submissions will be treated as public documents.

Pipelines Act 1967

DEPARTMENT OF NATURAL RESOURCES AND ENVIRONMENT

Notice of Grant of a Pipeline Permit and Compulsory Acquisition of Land or Interests in Land

I, Patrick McNamara, Minister for Agriculture and Resources for the State of Victoria in accordance with section 22A of the Pipelines Act 1967 hereby give notice that:-

1. Pursuant to section 12 of the Pipelines Act 1967, Permit to Own and Use a Pipeline 182 was granted to Gascor on 18 February 1998 for a period of twenty one years for the purposes of conveying gaseous hydrocarbons from Rutherglen to Koonoomoo.

2. It is proposed that interests in land be compulsorily acquired to allow the vesting in the permittee of an easement for pipeline purposes.

3. The land affected by the proposal is the land on the route of the Rutherglen to Koonoomoo pipeline route as shown on the plans T98-1-1A, T98-1-2A, T98-1-3A, T98-1-4A, T98-1.5B and T98-1-6C lodged and available for inspection at the offices of the Department of Natural Resources and Environment at 8th Floor, 240 Victoria Parade, Fitzroy.

To meet the Government's objectives for the gas industry and to establish a competitive structure in all sectors of the gas industry, there is an essential safety requirement to have a common set of technical gas specifications applicable in support of a multiplicity of commercial contracts and operational interfaces that will increasingly characterise relationships between the various industry participants.

The objective of the proposed Regulations is to ensure that gas is safe for transmission, distribution and use. The Regulations set minimum safety standards for quality of gas in order to prevent the potential for:

- creation of leaks, combustion or explosion in the transmission or distribution system; and
- explosion and other combustion problems in an appliance caused by inappropriate specification of gas.

The alternative of industry self-regulation has been considered as a way of achieving identified objectives. Assuming that safety and commercial imperatives will direct industry to employ current or similar means of ensuring gas quality, the associated equipment and operating costs of this option are estimated not to be significantly different from those of the proposed Regulations. However, for reasons outlined in the RIS, incremental administrative burdens imposed through the processes of "self-regulation" are expected to be greater than those incurred under the proposal and therefore, the alternative is not preferred over the proposed Regulations.

While the provision of minimum specifications for gas quality by the proposed Regulations may, in principle, increase the economic barrier to market entry, the increase is necessary in the interests of public safety, and the magnitude is not considered to be of practical significance.

The proposed minimum requirements are considered an appropriate safety threshold for delivering benefits to the public. By adopting these restrictions, the objectives of the Act and the proposed Regulations are optimised.

An RIS has been prepared in respect of the Regulations. The RIS has been prepared to examine the proposed Regulations and consider and evaluate alternatives. It concludes that the objectives could best be achieved by making the Regulations.

Copies of the RIS may be obtained by contacting Geoff Hargreaves from Energy Projects Division, Department of Treasury and Finance on 9651 3791 between 9.00 a.m. and 5.00 p.m. on weekdays, or collected from Level 3, 35 Spring Street, Melbourne.

Public comments or submissions are invited on the proposed Regulations and RIS. All comments and submissions must be in writing and must be received at the above address by no later than 5.00 p.m. on 26 March 1998.

All submissions will be treated as public documents.

Subordinate Legislation Act 1994
REGULATORY IMPACT STATEMENT
Gas Safety (Safety Case) Regulations 1998

Notice is given under Section 11 of the Subordinate Legislation Act 1994, that a Regulatory Impact Statement (RIS) has been prepared in relation to the proposed Gas Safety (Safety Case) Regulations 1998.

Until recently, the Gas and Fuel Corporation and his successors, GASCOR and the Gas Transmission Corporation (GTC), regulated safety outcomes for the gas industry. With corporatisation and now disaggregation of GASCOR and the GTC, it is desirable to introduce a rigorous yet efficient regulatory regime for gas safety. The Gas Safety Act 1997 established the Office of Gas Safety to assume the safety regulatory functions previously performed by the Gas and Fuel Corporation. The Office is responsible for administration of gas safety standards, oversight of the safety of the gas industry, public education with respect to gas safety issues, the investigation of incidents with implications for gas safety and the protection of consumers through appropriate appliance approval processes.

The Act imposes safety duties on all persons involved in the management and operation of a gas transmission, distribution, or retail business. In order to ensure appropriate safety procedures are adopted, a person operating, or seeking to establish such a business, must submit a safety case to the Office of Gas Safety for each of its facilities.

a roll-over is to ensure that the tractor is fitted with a roll-over protective structure (ROPS).

The objective of the proposed Regulations is to amend the provisions in the Occupational Health and Safety (Plant) Regulations 1995 (the Principal Regulations) concerning the duties of certain persons in relation to tractors. The primary reason for amending the Principal Regulations is to clarify the law and provide for a specific regulatory control to protect people operating pre-1981 tractors (i.e. tractors manufactured in or imported into Victoria before 1 July 1981) against death or serious injury arising from tractors overturning.

Regulation 903 of the Principal Regulations currently imposes specific duties on suppliers, employers and self-employed persons in relation to ROPS for tractors manufactured in or imported into Victoria on or after 1 July 1981. While ROPS may be required to be fitted on pre-1981 tractors in certain circumstances because of the application of regulation 711 (which applies to powered mobile plant), it has become clear that more specific obligations are required. The proposed Regulations will place a specific duty on employers and self-employed persons in relation to the fitting of ROPS on pre-1981 tractors. This new duty will not apply if it is not practicable to fit a ROPS to the pre-1981 tractor. The proposed Regulations also include amendments to provide greater clarity of the current exceptions to regulation 903 and correct two minor anomalies in the duties of suppliers and auctioneers in relation to tractors.

The costs and benefits of the proposed Regulations are outlined in the RIS. The principal cost component which will be incurred is the purchase and fitting of a ROPS to pre-1981 tractors. The principal benefit of the proposed Regulations identified in the RIS is that they will assist in protecting operators of pre-1981 tractors against death associated with tractor roll-over. The RIS considers that the proposed Regulations are a cost-effective means of saving lives. The alternative to the proposed Regulations considered in the RIS is not to amend the Principal Regulations but to supplement them with an advertising and publicity campaign on the hazards of roll-overs and the need for ROPS. The RIS concludes that the proposed Regulations are the most effective means of achieving the objective.

The proposed amending code of practice (titled Code of Practice for Plant (Amendment No. 1) will amend the Code of Practice for Plant to provide guidance on the provisions of the amended Principal Regulations that relate to tractors. This includes guidance on current provisions as well as the proposed amended regulation 903.

Public comments are invited on the RIS and accompanying Regulations, and the draft amending code of practice. Copies may be obtained by telephoning Ms Lois Mildren on (03) 9641 1373 or by writing to:

Application No. 17 of 1998

The Anti-Discrimination Tribunal constituted by the President pursuant to Section 182 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 ("the Act") has considered an application pursuant to Section 83 of the Act by Enhance Systems Pty Ltd. The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ a female sales executive.

Upon reading the material tendered in support of this application the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from Sections 13, 100 and 195 of the Act to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ a female sales executive.

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted:

- The applicant's primary business has been the rental of uniforms, dirt and dust control matting products as well as some washroom services.
- The range of washroom products includes the provision of female hygiene services (sanitary waste units).
- The position of sales executive will require analysing customer's needs and physically auditing female washrooms within customer's premises.
- The service offered will be discreet and the subject requires sensitivity best sold by someone who understands the unique needs of customers. Given the sensitive nature of the product service, industry experience suggest that women are more comfortable discussing such needs with someone of the same gender. In fact they are quite uncomfortable discussing their personal hygiene requirements with a man.
- The detailed requirements of the customers can be quite diverse and require detailed analysis requiring open, honest communication, all of which, needs an empathetic approach suggesting a women would be most appropriate for the role.

The Tribunal grants an exemption from the operation of Sections 13, 100 and 195 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995, to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ a female sales executive, this exemption to remain in force until 25 February 2001.

Application No. 18 of 1998

The Anti-Discrimination Tribunal constituted by the President pursuant to Section 182 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 ("the Act") has considered an application pursuant to Section 83 of the Act by Interchange Outer East Inc. The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ a male Co-ordinator.

Upon reading the material tendered in support of this application the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from Sections 13, 100 and 195 of the Act to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ a male Co-ordinator.

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted:

- The position is that of a shared Co-ordinator of a group of young disabled adults. The group is made up of both male and female participants aged 18 to 25 years.
- Currently the group has one female Co-ordinator.
- Due to the sensitive nature of the personal care aspects of the role, bathing, toileting, etc. and with a view to the sensitivities of the young male participants, an additional male Co-ordinator would be suited for the position.
- Assisting with toileting, changing and dressing in many public places where uni-sex disabled toilets and change rooms are unavailable poses extreme

EXEMPTION

Application No. 19 of 1998

The Anti-Discrimination Tribunal constituted by the President pursuant to Section 182 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 ("the Act") has considered an application pursuant to Section 83 of the Act by Janmara Heights Pty Ltd. T/as Enterprise Recruitment. The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to advertise for and provide Pre-employment Services, Placement and Post Placement Support to unemployed persons aged between 15 and 24 years and persons aged between 25 and 39 years.

Upon reading the material tendered in support of this application the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from Sections 13, 42, 100 and 195 of the Act to enable the applicant to advertise for and provide Pre-employment Services, Placement and Post Placement Support to unemployed persons aged between 15 and 24 years and persons aged between 25 and 39 years.

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted:

- The applicant has received funding from the Department of State Development to provide Pre-employment Services, Placement and Post Placement Support to unemployed persons aged between 15 and 24 years and persons aged between 25 and 39 years.
- In 1996-97, Community Business Employment (CBE) operated upon the successful relationship between the community, business and industry, recognising that Community plus Business equals Employment. The success of CBE has been outstanding with over 39,000 unemployed Victorians placed into work from March 1994 to August 1997.

- The Victorian Government has refined the CBE Program to assist unemployed Victorians who will receive limited assistance from the new Commonwealth funding arrangements.
- Under the 1998 CBE Program, the applicant has been contracted to deliver Employment Placement to people unemployed between 3 and 12 months, who are not in receipt of Commonwealth FLEX 2 or FLEX 3 employment placement services or case managed by an Employment Services Regulatory Authority private provider or Employment Assistance Australia with the emphasis on the group most in need; Young people aged 15 - 24 years (160 placements); and People unemployed between 3 and 12 months, who are not in receipt of Commonwealth FLEX 2 or FLEX 3 employment placement services or case managed by an Employment Services Regulatory Authority private provider or Employment Assistance Australia and are aged between 25 and 39 years (70 placements).

- Placements must represent a gender balance to the community served.

The Tribunal grants an exemption from the operation of Sections 13, 42, 100 and 195 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995, to enable the applicant to advertise for and provide Pre-employment Services, Placement and Post Placement Support to unemployed persons aged between 15 and 24 years and persons aged between 25 and 39 years. this exemption to remain in force until 25 February 2001.
