LATE NOTICES

EXEMPTION

Application A326 of 1999

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal has considered an application pursuant to Section 83 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 by University of Melbourne, Post Graduate Association Inc. The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to advertise and employ a female Research and Advisory Officer.

Upon reading the material tendered in support of this application the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from Sections 13, 100 & 195 of the Act to enable the applicant to advertise and employ a female Research and Advisory Officer.

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted:

- The Research and Advisory Officer is responsible for the provision of academic advice and support services, research and policy development and academic and professional programs. In particular the position is responsible for the providing of advice and counselling to those preferring a woman adviser (e.g. in matters of sexual harassment) and in research and policy development on women's issues.
- Women make up about 59% of the postgraduate students at the University of Melbourne. Even though this is over half of the postgraduate population, women still remain under-represented in engineering, business and science faculties. However, they are over-represented in arts, education and health sciences. Women make up 70% of postgraduate diploma enrolments, but under 53% of research higher degrees.
- The Unit promotes contact between postgraduate women, academics and professional women. This contact is an important source of role models, motivation and opportunities and is also an effective means to counter the dominant male culture within the university.
- Women postgraduates who are experiencing sexual harassment intimidation and other problems with their supervisor; difficulties balancing child care, work and study; or any other academic or personal problems have in the past expressed a desire to see a female adviser. Especially those women who are from different cultures who are encouraged to consult other women on matters of an intimate nature.

- There are currently no women employed within the Academic Development Unit who are able to undertake the role of adviser. While there are six other women working in the unit, they are all administrative, reception, management or publications positions, unable to provide counselling to students.
- In addition to the counselling this employee would provide, there are also other functions which the person would undertake. For example, they would conduct research on issues affecting women and run women's programs.
- Unless the vacant position is taken up by a woman, the Unit would only be employing male advisers and researchers, creating a gender imbalance within the Unit. Employment of a female would aid to rectify this imbalance.

The Tribunal grants an exemption from the operation of Sections 13, 100 and 195 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 to enable the applicant to advertise and employ a female Research and Advisory Officer.

This exemption is to remain in force from the day on which notice of the exemption is published in the Government Gazette until December 1, 2002.

Dated 1 December 1999.
