EXEMPTION

Application No. A353/2010

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal has considered an application pursuant to section 83 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 (the Act) by the Brotherhood of St Laurence (the applicant). The application for exemption is to allow the applicant and its sub-licensees to:

- in employing persons as home tutors, give preference to parents or carers of children participating in its Home Interaction Program for Parents and Youngsters (HIPPY) or parents or carers of candidates for HIPPY or parents or carers of children who have previously participated in HIPPY and
- to advertise those matters (the exempt conduct).

Upon reading the material filed in support of this application, including the affidavits of Carmen Calleya-Capp and the affidavit of Annette Filipovic and having heard evidence from Ms Calleya-Capp and Ms Filipovic, the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from sections 13, 14, 100 and 195 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted:

- The applicant is licensed to operate HIPPY in Australia. HIPPY is a model which provides parents with the tools and support they need to teach their own children in their home. It originated in 1969 in Israel and has been replicated in 12 countries.
- In Australia HIPPY is a two year home based parenting and early childhood enrichment program that empowers parents and carers to be their child's first teacher. The program builds the confidence and skills of parents and carers to create a positive learning environment to prepare their child for school. The program also offers participating parents and carers a supported pathway to employment and local community leadership in their role as a HIPPY Home Tutor. The program is targeted at disadvantaged areas with a high proportion of families with young children.
- In 2007 the Australian Government committed around $32.5 million over five years to roll out the program to 50 communities nationally, support 3,000 families and to support around 300 parents/carers to be HIPPY Home Tutors. That program is to be managed by the applicant through its own organisation and through sub-licences with other not for profit organisations.
- Each program location is staffed by a tertiary qualified coordinator and a team of Home Tutors. Home Tutors are past or current parents participating in the program who live in the local community. The Home Tutors are paid employees and receive training. Home Tutors schedule regular contact with parents and carers to work through the program activities in the family's home. Role play is the method used by Home Tutors to facilitate the understanding go the parents and carers about how to do the activities. As the Home Tutors are past or current participants in HIPPY they are often better able to relate to the families with whom they work and they become role models for the parents because they are in the same role and have undertaken the program themselves. The result is that participating parents are encouraged and in addition the Home Tutors are trained and develop their own skills and confidence to improve their own lives.

- A previous exemption in the same terms was granted to the applicant in 2007 (A103/2007).
- When making decisions about exemptions, the Tribunal is required to give proper consideration to relevant human rights as set out in the Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities Act 2006 (Charter). Arguably, this exemption limits the right to equal and effective protection against discrimination of persons who are not and have not been parents or carers of children participating in HIPPY who would wish to be employed. I am satisfied that in the circumstances discussed above, the limit imposed by this exemption is reasonable and justified under the Charter.

The Tribunal hereby grants an exemption from the operation of sections 13, 14, 100 and 195 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

This exemption is to remain in force from the day on which notice of the exemption is published in the Government Gazette until 30 March 2014.

EXEMPTION

Application No. A70/2011

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal has considered an application pursuant to section 83 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 (the Act) by the City of Greater Dandenong (the applicant). The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to advertise for and appoint only an Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander person in the position of Youth Health Coordinator (the exempt conduct).

Upon reading the material filed in support of this application, including the affidavit of Mark Doubleday, the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from sections 13, 14, 100 and 195 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted:

- According to the 2006 ABS Census, there are just under 4,300 Aboriginal people in the Southern Metropolitan Region of Melbourne and that amounts to almost 14 per cent of the total Aboriginal population in Victoria. The median age for Aboriginal people in the Southern Region is 25 years compared to a median age of 37 for the non-Aboriginal population. The percentage of Aboriginal children and young persons under 20 years is 45 per cent, compared to 24.1 per cent of the non-Aboriginal population. Aboriginal Victorians continue to experience disadvantage across a range of health, social and economic indicators, including shorter life expectancy, greater burden of chronic disease, low birth-weights, lower rates of literacy and numeracy, lower school retention rates at year 11 and 12 and higher unemployment.
- The Council of Australian Governments has proposed a national target of 2.6 per cent for Aboriginal public sector employment to be achieved by 2015. The applicant is committed to working to close the gap in Aboriginal disadvantage within a decade with respect to life expectancy, child mortality, access to early childhood education, educational attainment and employment outcomes. In seeking to achieve that goal the applicant has worked with a number of bodies including the Inter Council Aboriginal Consultative Committee.
- The position of Youth Health Coordinator will be a fixed term position to 30 June 2013 and is funded through the Closing the Gap National Partnership on Indigenous Health via the Victorian Department of Health. The funding is managed by the Southern Region Closing the Gap Committee whose majority members are Aboriginal.
- The role is aimed at improving the health of young Aboriginal people aged 10 to 25 living, studying or working in the region. The holder of the role will be involved in the delivery of outcomes in the following projects: the Healthy Transition to Adulthood Plan, developing effective partnerships to ensure future sustainability of initiatives and maintaining effective information and reporting mechanisms to the Southern Metropolitan Region Closing the Gap

Committee. A focus will be on engaging young Aboriginal people in particular those disengaged from school and/or work, in activities that enhance their health and wellbeing. The role requires the holder to have an understanding of contemporary culture and the diverse nature of the Aboriginal Communities in the Southern Region of Victoria.

- Taking into account the nature of the role and the target designed to increase participation in the public sector, it is appropriate that the holder of the role be an Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander person.
- When making decisions about exemptions, the Tribunal is required to give proper consideration to relevant human rights as set out in the Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities Act 2006 (Charter). Arguably, this exemption limits the right to equal and effective protection against discrimination of a non-Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander person wishing to apply for the Youth Health Coordinator role. I am satisfied that the exemption is a measure taken for the purpose of assisting or advancing Aboriginal people who are disadvantaged and so it does not amount to discrimination under the Charter. In any event, in the circumstances discussed above, the limit imposed by this exemption is reasonable and justified under the Charter.

The Tribunal hereby grants an exemption from the operation of sections 13, 14, 100 and 195 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

This exemption is to remain in force from the day on which notice of the exemption is published in the Government Gazette until 30 March 2014.

EXEMPTION

Application No. A59/2011

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal has considered an application pursuant to section 83 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 (the Act) by Mind Australia (the applicant). The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to advertise for and appoint only a male as a Male Support Worker (the exempt conduct).

Upon reading the material filed in support of this application, including the affidavit of Lidia Bonnici, the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from sections 13, 100 and 195 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted:

- The applicant is a leading provider of consumer focused mental health services in Victoria and South Australia. The applicant works with people who experience mental health difficulties, to help them live well in the community, with or without symptoms. The applicant runs the Chiron program which is a youth residential program which provides support for young people aged 16 to 25 who are recovering from mental health issues. Clients may stay for up to two years as they work on their recovery goals.
- The applicant seeks to employ a male support worker to replace a former member of staff. All other current members of staff are female. As the clients of the Chiron program are 50% male, the applicant wishes to ensure that those clients are offered services and support from a male worker.
- The role includes: providing an opportunity for young men to better understand themselves; providing social and recreational support for clients who feel socially isolated; assisting to address the psychosocial issues that result in young men's experience of mental illness, alcohol and drug issues, anger, abuse, trauma and disempowerment; providing a setting in which to explore special topics which are frequently difficult for young men to talk about; and leading the clients to a greater understanding of the unique challenges faced by young men. The applicant has found that some male clients relate better to a male worker and for some having a male worker provides an opportunity to develop a relationship with a male role model. As a consequence, it wishes to ensure that its can provide a male support workers to its male clients.
- When making decisions about exemptions, the Tribunal is required to give proper consideration to relevant human rights as set out in the Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities Act 2006 (Charter).

Arguably, this exemption limits the right to equal and effective protection against discrimination of females who would wish to be employed in a support worker role by the applicant. I am satisfied that in the circumstances discussed above, the limit imposed by this exemption is reasonable and justified under the Charter.

The Tribunal hereby grants an exemption from the operation of sections 13, 100 and 195 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

This exemption is to remain in force from the day on which notice of the exemption is published in the Government Gazette until 30 March 2014.

- (1A) The Minister, when fixing a fee under subsection (1) that may be charged by, or is required to be paid to, the Authority for or in connection with a thing done by the Authority, may fix a different higher fee if the thing is to be done by a person performing a function delegated by the Authority under section 4.2.7A.
