EXEMPTION

Application No. A50/2012

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal has considered an application pursuant to section 89 of the Equal Opportunity Act 2010 (the Act) by Women's Health Grampians Inc. (the applicant). The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to:

- employ women only;
- provide services, including membership-related services, to women only; and
- advertise these matters.

(together, the exempt conduct).

Upon reading the material filed in support of this application, including the affidavits of Patricia Kinnersly, and having read the submissions made by the applicant and the Victorian Equal Opportunity and Human Rights Commission, the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from sections 16, 44, 107 and 182 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted:

- On being provided with a copy of the application for an exemption, the Victorian Equal Opportunity and Human Rights Commission (the Commission) sought and was granted to intervene in the application under section 159 of the Act. The Commission made submissions to the Tribunal regarding the potential application of exceptions under the Act. The applicant made submissions in reply regarding those exception provisions. The effect of the submissions is that the parties agree that the evidence available does not establish that an exception under the Act applies to the exempt conduct such that no exemption is required.

- An interim exemption was granted to the applicant to allow time for the matters discussed above to be considered by the Tribunal. That interim exemption will expire on 31 October 2012. In the absence of a further exemption, after that date the exempt conduct would amount to prohibited discrimination.
- The applicant organisation is one of 12 services funded through the Department of Health Women's Health Program. Consistent with that program, it is a community based organisation run by women for women in the Grampians region of Victoria. The applicant's key purposes are to assist women on health issues and to respond to the needs of women who experience disadvantage and discrimination. There is a focus on the needs of women who have limited access to health services, including Koori women, women from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds, women with disabilities and rural women. It seeks to improve the health and wellbeing of Victorian women through the development and dissemination of health information and research and through the provision of community and professional education.
- The applicant's services are wide ranging and include advocacy work regarding health and wellbeing issues and in promoting policy development which addresses women's needs; increasing awareness of the health and well being needs of women in the Grampians area; and providing information to women in the community including in relation to the importance of medical examinations including pap smears, breast examinations and cervical screening. The applicant also works on researching and understanding the needs of women in respect to domestic violence. Statistical information provided to the Tribunal shows that rates of domestic violence have been steadily increasing in the Grampians area and, as a consequence, the numbers of women and children who are affected have increased. The services provided to members of the applicant organisation include access to programs and involvement in the running of the organisation.
- The applicant organisation is headed by a Chief Executive Officer. In addition, the applicant employs two full time employees and 8 part time employees. Seven employees work as Health Promotion Workers and the balance of the staff undertake administration and finance work. All staff are, from time to time, required to answer telephones or field enquiries from women seeking to use the service. It is appropriate that all staff are women so that clients can be confident that, when contacting the service, they will have their personal and confidential enquiries addressed by a woman. Having all women employees is also consistent with the services being provided to women by women and respect for the women's perspective being attributed the highest priority.

- Research material indicates that there is a need at times for health and other services to be provided on a gender-specific and gender-responsive basis and so there are developing like services for men.
- When making decisions about exemptions, the Tribunal is required to give proper consideration to relevant human rights as set out in the Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities Act 2006 (Charter). Arguably, this exemption limits the right to equality and in particular the right to equal and effective protection against discrimination of men who would wish to be employed by the applicant or who would wish to access services as a client or member. I am satisfied that, in the circumstances discussed above, the limit imposed by this exemption is reasonable and justified under the Charter.

The Tribunal hereby grants an exemption from the operation of sections 16, 44, 107 and 182 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

This exemption is to remain in force from 1 November 2012 until 31 October 2017.
