EXEMPTION

Application No. A19/2013

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal has considered an application pursuant to section 89 of the Equal Opportunity Act 2010 (the Act) by AQA Victoria Ltd (the applicant). The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ a male attendant carer or female attendant carer as the need arises (the exempt conduct).

Upon reading the material filed in support of this application, including the affidavits of Peter Trethewey, the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from sections 16, 107 and 182 to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

In granting this exemption, the Tribunal noted:

- The applicant is a service provider of attendant care to people with quadriplegia and similar physical disabilities. The attendants work predominantly in the client's home and their work often includes providing intimate support during bladder and bowel actions and in areas of general hygiene.
- The applicant also provides community access services to provide support to clients to attend or participate in an activity or event including shopping banking, medical appointments, going to work and recreational activities. Respite care can also be provided on a planned and regular or episodic basis.
- In the applicant's experience clients and/or their representatives request a carer of their own gender or a gender with whom they feel more comfortable working.
- Previous exemptions have been granted to the applicant in similar terms. An interim exemption was granted on 5 February 2013 and expires on 4 May 2013. Although the majority of the applicant's services are provided within the client's home, some are not. In these circumstances, I am not satisfied that the exception contained in section 24 of the Act applies such that no exemption is necessary. After 4 May 2013, in the absence of an exemption, the exempt conduct would amount to prohibited discrimination.
- When making decisions about exemptions, the Tribunal is required to give proper consideration to relevant human rights as set out in the Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities Act 2006 (Charter). Arguably, this exemption limits the right to equality and in particular the right to equal and effective protection against discrimination of men or women who wish to be employed by the applicant at a time when their gender is not sought. I am satisfied that for the purposes of this exemption, the limit imposed by this exemption is reasonable and justified under the Charter.

The Tribunal hereby grants an exemption from the operation of sections 16, 107 and 182 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

This exemption is to remain in force from 5 May 2013 to 4 May 2018.

EXEMPTION

Application No. A28/2013

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal has considered an application pursuant to section 89 of the Equal Opportunity Act 2010 (the Act) by Inner South Community Health Service (the applicant). The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to:

- (a) advertise for and employ four females only as Health Education and Support Workers to work with female and male street sex workers, escorts and private sex workers and transgender sex industry workers; and
 - (b) advertise for and employ a female only as Young Women's Support Worker to work with females aged 15 to 25 who are homeless, at risk of homelessness and/or involved in sex work
- (the exempt conduct).

Upon reading the material filed in support of this application, including the affidavits of Virginia Alexander, the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from sections 16, 107 and 182 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted:

- The aim of the exemption is to permit services to be provided to male, female and transgender workers in the sex industry, and homeless young women in a way that will enable those for whom these services are intended to access those services most effectively. The vast majority of the applicant's clients are female and their clients are usually male. Often the applicant's clients, female and male, have suffered violence or sexual abuse at the hands of men. The applicant believes that it is appropriate that its workers are female given that the majority of its clients are female and are more likely to communicate freely with a woman who can display the necessary awareness and sensitivity to the issues which arise.

- Previous exemptions in similar terms were granted to the applicant in August 2006 and January 2010, the latter of which expired on 20 January 2013. I am not satisfied that the exception contained in section 28 of the Act applies to the exempt conduct where the workers will work with both males and females. In the absence of an exemption, the exempt conduct would amount to prohibited discrimination.
- When making decisions about exemptions, the Tribunal is required to give proper consideration to relevant human rights as set out in the Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities Act 2006 (Charter). Arguably, this exemption limits the right to equality and in particular the right to equal and effective protection against discrimination of males who would wish to be employed by the applicant in these roles. I am satisfied that, in the circumstances discussed above, the limit imposed by this exemption is reasonable and justified under the Charter.

The Tribunal hereby grants an exemption from the operation of sections 16, 107 and 182 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

This exemption is to remain in force from the day on which notice of the exemption is published in the Government Gazette until 13 March 2018.
