EXEMPTION

Application No. H15/2014

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal has considered an application pursuant to section 89 of the Equal Opportunity Act 2010 (the Act) by Domestic Violence Resource Centre Victoria Inc (the applicant). The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ only women in all positions at the applicant organisation (the exempt conduct).

Upon reading the material submitted in support of the application, including the affidavits of Jocelyn Fay Geary and Virginia Geddes, the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from sections 14, 18, 107 and 182 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted:

- The applicant was established in 1987 and is a community organisation funded by the Victorian Department of Human Services. It currently employs approximately 16 mainly part-time workers. The applicant provides initial support, information and referral to individuals and professionals looking for information on family violence and family violence services. The applicant also provides a specialist library that is open to the general public, with resources relating to family violence, sexual assault and child sexual assault. Many of the female visitors to the library disclose experiences of abuse to the applicant's staff while looking for information on those subjects. Over 90% of those who call the applicant's call centre are women. The majority of those with personal experience of abuse are women and, in the applicant's experience, they prefer to disclose family violence or sexual assault to female workers.
- The applicant has referred to research which indicates that violence is the leading contributor to death, disability and illness in Victorian women aged 15 to 44 years and that women are overwhelmingly more likely than men to be victims of intimate partner violence. As a consequence, the applicant says that violence is a gendered issue which has serious health, social and economic consequences for women.
- The current positions within the applicant organisation are as follows: Executive Officer, Training Coordinator, Communications Coordinator, Office Coordinator, Trainer, Community Legal Worker, Online Communications Worker, Prevention Officer, Finance and Administration Officer, Information and Reception Worker, Library and Research Officer, Publication and Research Officer and Researcher. All positions, except that of the Executive Officer, are part time and so many roles are shared across the organisation. All staff have direct dealings with women who attend or telephone the applicant's offices.
- I am satisfied that, where staff are dealing with women seeking advice relating to family violence and related matters, the evidence would support a finding that the exception contained in section 28 of the Act would apply. That is because those services are special services under section 88 of the Act and are likely to be most effectively provided by other women. However, to the extent that employees may, from time to time, provide research or other material to women who have not experienced family violence or sexual abuse or to men, provide training or undertake purely administrative roles, I am not satisfied that the material before me proves that those services can be provided most effectively by women only. Where I am not satisfied that an exception applies to the services provided by the holder of each role within the applicant organisation but accept that it is preferable that vulnerable women who have suffered family and similar violence receive services from women only, it is appropriate that an exemption be granted.

- Previous exemptions have been granted in respect of the exempt conduct, with the last expiring on 26 January 2014. In the absence of a further exemption, the exempt conduct would amount to prohibited discrimination.
- When making decisions about exemptions, the Tribunal is required to give proper consideration to relevant human rights as set out in the Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities Act 2006 (Charter). Arguably, this exemption limits the right to equal and effective protection against discrimination of men wishing to apply for employment with the applicant. I am satisfied that in the circumstances discussed above, the limit imposed by this exemption is reasonable and justified under the Charter.

The Tribunal hereby grants an exemption from the operation of sections 16, 18, 107 and 182 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

This exemption is to remain in force from the day on which notice of the exemption is published in the Government Gazette until 7 May 2019.
